One of the biggest fears for people switching to Linux is the interface. Different menus, different icons, different feel.

But here's the truth: you can make MX Linux look almost identical to Windows.

With just a few steps, you can have:

- bottom taskbar like Windows
- Windows-style Start menu
- Windows-style icons
- Windows 10 or Windows 11 theme
- familiar and immediate experience

The advantage? You keep the speed and stability of MX Linux, but with the look you already know.

Step 1: move the taskbar to the bottom

MX Linux uses Xfce, which makes panel customization very easy.

- Right-click the taskbar
- Select Panel → Panel Preferences
- Set position: Bottom
- Set length: 100%

Now the taskbar already looks very similar to Windows.

Step 2: install a Windows-style Start menu

MX Linux already uses Whisker Menu, which is very similar to the Windows Start menu.

If it is not installed:

sudo apt install xfce4-whiskermenu-plugin -y

Then:

- Right-click the taskbar
- Add New Items
- Select Whisker Menu

This creates a menu that is practically identical to Windows.

Step 3: install a Windows-style theme

Install a modern theme:

sudo apt install arc-theme -y

Then go to:

- Settings
- Appearance
- Select Arc theme or similar

This makes windows and colors similar to Windows.

Step 4: install Windows-style icons

Install modern icon packs:

sudo apt install papirus-icon-theme -y

Then:

- Settings
- Appearance
- Icons
- Select Papirus

Now the look is much more modern.

Step 5: add a Windows wallpaper

Download a Windows 10 or Windows 11 wallpaper and set it:

- Right-click on the desktop
- Desktop Settings
- Select your wallpaper

This completes the transformation.

Final result

You now have a system that looks like Windows, but with all the advantages of Linux:

- faster
- more stable
- more secure
- lighter

MX Linux becomes the perfect solution for anyone who wants to leave Windows without changing habits.
